Leading analysts have predicted for decades that nuclear weapons would help pacify international politics. The core notion is that countries protected by these fearsome weapons can stop competing so intensely with their adversaries: they can end their arms races, scale back their alliances, and stop jockeying for strategic territory. But rarely have theory and practice been so opposed. Why do international relations in the nuclear age remain so competitive? Indeed, why are today's major geopolitical rivalries intensifying? In The

Myth of the Nuclear Revolution, Keir A.

Lieber and Daryl G.

Press tackle the central puzzle of the nuclear age: the persistence of intense geopolitical

competition in the shadow of nuclear weapons. They explain why the Cold War superpowers

raced so feverishly E
against each other;
why the creation of
"mutual assured
destruction" does not ensure peace; and
why the rapid technological changes of the 21st century will weaken deterrence in critical hotspots
around the world. By explaining how the nuclear revolution
